

Pay when an inspection lands in your calendar. Not before.

Meet Kelpie: the agent that answers every enquiry the moment it arrives, chases quotes going cold, and books recurring inspections when they fall due. Your own leads stay yours, free, always. The meter runs on one thing: what Kelpie locks in itself.

$0

Your own leads

Enquiries through your website, email, or answered phone.
 Anything you book yourself. Never billed.

$60

Site visit locked in

A new enquiry going cold, chased by Kelpie until a walkthrough time is confirmed in your calendar.

$150

Inspection booked

A due inspection round booked with an existing site, or a lapsed client re-engaged onto the schedule.

Who pays for what

An enquiry arrives through your own website, email, or answered phone

FREE, YOURS

You book a lead yourself, however it arrived

FREE, YOUR CRAFT

Kelpie chases a stalled or missed enquiry and locks in a site visit

$60

Kelpie books a due inspection round, or re-engages a lapsed site onto the schedule

$150

A site visit Kelpie secured becomes a contract through your own close

YOUR GO FIRST, EVERY LEAD

"LEAVE IT WITH ME" SWITCH

7 days

DISPUTE IT, IT COMES OFF

The comparison that matters. An admin chasing inspection bookings costs $4,000 to $6,000 a month, and a lapsed ESM client is a year of contract revenue gone to whoever rings them first. Kelpie never lets a due date pass quietly.

Every lead walks the same path

Kelpie never decides what happens next; the flow does. AI drafts the messages, and every step either side of that is fixed: same path for every lead, day or night. If any step fails, the failure pages a human. It never hides in a log.

The ledger: one set of rows, both of us read it (a worked example)

WHEN	WHO	SERVICE	SOURCE	STATUS	BILLED
4 Aug	Cafe fit-out	Extinguisher install	Missed call	Booked by you	$0
6 Aug	Strata OC	ESM walkthrough	Your website	Site visit, Kelpie locked in day 6	$60
9 Aug	Warehouse	6-month extinguishers	Compliance calendar	Inspection booked on due date	$150
11 Aug	Test entry	Spam	Form	Excluded, never silent	$0

Every lead carries its timestamp, source, and status, machine-logged at each step. What is billable is a fact in the rows, not a judgment call. The monthly report itemises all of it, free rows included, and the invoice is generated from the same ledger. If the count ever needed manual work, the system would be broken.

Re-engagement: the part that compounds

The chase (this month's leads)

- Unbooked after your grace window, Kelpie follows up: polite, branded as your business, never pushy.
- It proposes real times and writes the confirmed visit to a shared calendar.
- Flag any lead "leave it with me" and Kelpie never touches it.

The compliance calendar (every due date, watched)

- Every serviced site logged with asset classes and due dates; the completion note doubles as the log entry.
- Extinguishers at six months, exit lights annually, the annual ESM statement: Kelpie reaches out ahead of every due date.
- Each completed round seeds the next. Your contract base stops leaking quietly.

What this is not. Not your safety system of record, not a compliance certifier, not job-management software. Kelpie schedules and chases; testing, certification and the regulatory record stay with your qualified technicians. You own the stack, and every message is yours to read in the log.
